From the President's Desk.....

We find ourselves in that familiar time of year again: as summer bids us farewell, the new court year arrives and brings with it new opportunities and fresh faces to the Mercer County Bar Association. Before summer left us, however, it welcomed some successful programs and events, all of which reflected the distinction of our Bar and served as a wonderful preview for what the MCBA has in store for the fall.

July treated us to a taste of summer, as we participated in a modified version of America's pastime: slow-pitch softball. On July 14, the Young Lawyers Committee hosted a day of co-ed softball games at Veterans Park in Hamilton. Many MCBA members and non-members played in the blazing sun for glory and for charity. We are happy to have donated hundreds of dollars in proceeds from the event to the Gary Sinise Foundation and LifeTies. Thank you to Joe Paravecchia and Andrew Ferencevych for organizing the games, and a big thank you to our sponsors and corporate partners for making the event a success.

The Municipal Bench-Bar also contributed to a productive July by featuring its 2018 New Jersey Arrest, Search and Seizure Review at the Ewing Municipal Courthouse. Thank you to all who attended and to the Municipal Bench and Bar for putting on an informative event.

August remained true to its nature as a quiet month overall. But it did allow for MCBA members to register for an exciting opportunity in September. This year marks ten years since the MCBA last arranged a professional composite of our membership. MCBA Executive Director Samantha Iraca and her staff collaborated with RCL-JR Russell Portrait Design to schedule portraits of most of our current members for various dates in September. Thank you to everyone who will participate in the composite, especially our friends at the Mercer County Criminal Courthouse, Stark & Stark, Hill Wallack, and the Mercer County Prosecutor's Office, who have generously offered their office space to have the portraits taken.

September promises to be as colorful for the MCBA as the changing leaves of fall. On September 4, we will celebrate commencement of the new court year with the Opening Ceremony and Memorial Service in Judge Jacobson's courtroom at the Mercer County Criminal Courthouse. Each year at the ceremonies, we introduce the distinguished members of our Bench and Bar, welcome new members, and honor the late lawyers and jurists who nobly contributed to the practice of law in Mercer County. This year, at the memorial service, we remember Judge A. Jerome Moore, Lowell Curran, J. Raymond Dietrich, and Lawrence F. O'Hara.

On September 17, we proudly join in recognizing Mercer County's very own Judge Linda R. Feinberg, as she receives the Medal of Honor Award — the New Jersey State Bar Foundation's most prestigious honor — at the Palace in Somerset Park. My personal biases aside, I cannot think of anyone more deserving of this recognition than Judge Feinberg. She epitomizes the professionalism and legal acumen of the most esteemed practitioners; it's simply no fluke that the Learning Center in the Criminal Courthouse bears Judge Feinberg's name. The MCBA is truly privileged to associate with and practice alongside Judge Feinberg. Congratulations, Judge Feinberg, on this well-deserved honor, and thank you for continuing to represent Mercer County with impeccable integrity.

September continues to impress with the annual Judges and Law Clerks Reception at Mercer Oaks Golf Club on September 26. The event will also serve as the September General Membership Meeting. I encourage all members to attend as we welcome the judges of Mercer County and their incoming law clerks. Mercer County has a rich tradition of judicial clerkships. Indeed, many of our members began their legal careers clerking for the distinguished judges of the Mercer County Superior Court. Please join us and help welcome the MCBA's newest and youngest members to the legal profession.

While on the topic of young professionals, the Judges and Law Clerks Reception will also include the MCBA's Young Lawyer of the Year Award. This year, we honor Ross Switkes, Esq., a partner of Trenk, DiPasquale, Della Fera & Sodono, P.C. Ross is an MCBA rising star, who currently serves as a trustee and co-chair of the Bankruptcy Committee, Young Lawyers Project, and Golf Committee. He has developed a strong reputation in the legal community statewide, and is a worthy recipient of one of the MCBA's finest awards. Congratulations, Ross.

Finally, with the fall comes anticipation of the MCBA's premiere event: Xtreme CLE. This year, on October 11, Xtreme will feature the best courses, sponsors, and giveaways to date. Please mark your calendars for this exciting event.

I hope everyone had a safe and enjoyable summer. I look forward to engaging in a productive and eventful fall with each and every one of you.

Drug Court Update

By, Judge Timothy Lydon, J.S.C.

The recent opiate crisis has brought renewed attention to New Jersey's drug court program. The program was initiated in 1996 to provide an alternative to incarceration for drug dependent offenders. Since its inception, the drug court system has diverted thousands of criminal defendants into treatment, with over 5,000 participants successfully graduating from all phases of the program.

The creation of the drug court program represented a dramatic shift in the way the State's criminal justice system addressed substance abuse and addiction. For years, policymakers emphasized deterrence to reduce increasing levels of drug-related offenses. These policies affected many defendants who were trapped in a cycle of substance abuse and criminal activity. Drug courts, however, offered a revolutionary alternative to the deterrence model. The program evolved from the belief that drug treatment and intensive supervision could reduce recidivism, improve public safety, and avoid the cost of lengthy prison terms.

Drug court is generally available for most non-violent offenders who are drug or alcohol dependent. A defendant may apply to drug court at any time prior to sentencing. Applicants must undergo a substance use evaluation to determine whether they are dependent, i.e., suffer from a moderate or severe substance use disorder. If the defendant is accepted, he is sentenced to a term of drug court probation. Although most defendants apply to drug court voluntarily, certain offenders are subject to mandatory drug court sentencing. Drug dependent defendants who are convicted of an offense that carries a presumption of imprisonment or have previously served a term of incarceration are usually required to enter drug court.

New drug court participants must comply with a rigorous set of conditions. Participants must complete a treatment program that often lasts from 12 months to 24 months. Many individuals with severe substance use disorders receive long-term inpatient services. Participants are required to submit to random urinalysis, make regular court appearances before a judge, meet with probation officers, and attend support groups. Probation officers make regular home visits, and new participants usually have curfews. After spending a few months in the program, most individuals must obtain employment or perform community service. The failure to adhere to these conditions may result in any number of sanctions. Serious violations of drug court policies include brief periods in jail or ultimately termination.

The program consists of four phases. They include: 1) Stabilization, 2) Positive Change, 3) Relapse Prevention, and 4) Commencement. Participants must remain in the program for a minimum of two years, and the maximum term is five years. The goal for every participant is to advance through the four phases and "graduate" from drug court. An individual may advance from phase 4 to graduation if they meet the following requirements:

- maintain one year of continuous clean time prior to the date of graduation;
- successfully complete all recommended treatment programs;
- obtain full-time employment, or obtain part-time employment and be actively engaged in a full-time trade or vocational school;
- establish a regular payment history on all court ordered fines including child support;
- demonstrate the establishment of a sober network of support in the community; and
- remain free of any pending criminal charges or active bench warrants.

Most participants spend three years in drug court

Drug Court Update

before they are eligible for graduation. Each drug court employs a specialized multi-disciplinary “team” to monitor the participants and ensure the integrity of the program. The team includes a judge, court staff, a prosecutor, a public defender, substance abuse evaluators, treatment providers, and probation officers. The members of the team collaborate and draw upon their expertise to facilitate the participants’ path to graduation. The team convenes weekly to review the status of the participants and various programmatic issues. The meetings are also used to conference any issues concerning a participant’s conduct. The team works to build a consensus before making any recommendations concerning a response to a participant’s behavior. The judge often accords considerable weight to team recommendations but remains responsible for all final decisions.

Every participant must appear before the team during regular court sessions. These sessions are usually held in presence of other drug court participants on a weekly basis. Participants must stand behind a lectern in open court and provide an update on their progress. They are encouraged to discuss their accomplishments, recent developments, or any difficulties they are facing in their lives outside of drug court. The judge and the other members of the team offer feedback to the participant and ask questions about any recent developments. They also acknowledge the participant’s achievements and address any misconduct.

These appearances are a distinctive feature of drug courts. They provide a significant level of accountability for the individuals in the program and contribute to their long-term success. According to the National Association of Drug Court Professionals (NADCP), regular court appearances lead to higher rates of drug abstinence and completion of the program. Judicial involvement is also critical. Several studies show that a drug court judge can have a measurable impact on participants. The NADCP reports “outcomes were significantly better when the judges spent an average of at least three minutes, and as much as seven minutes, interacting with the participants during court sessions.” Judicial demeanor appears to improve these results. Notably, “significantly greater reductions in crime and substance use were produced by judges who were rated by independent observers as being more respectful, fair, attentive, enthusiastic, consistent and caring in their interactions with the participants in court.”

Drug Court’s innovations have produced a number of positive benefits for the State. The rate of recidivism for drug court’s graduates is dramatically lower than the statewide average for all other offenders. Within three years of graduation, less than seven percent of drug court graduates were convicted of a new indictable offense. The comparable rate for an individual who is released from incarceration is 40 percent. The implications of this disparity are significant, considering that 99 percent of drug court participants were prison-bound, that is, they would have been sentenced to a state prison term but for the drug court program. In addition, the drug court program has realized considerable cost savings. It costs less than $13,000 annually to supervise a drug court participant, while the annual cost of incarceration is approximately $55,000 per inmate.

The participants and their families, however, are the true beneficiaries. Drug court monitors the participants’ recovery and adjusts their treatment regimen in the event of a relapse. The program’s vigilance yields a high rate of abstinence from drugs and alcohol. Within the last 12 months, 95 percent of all participants’ drug tests were negative. Drug court supervision also inspires participants to reach professional and personal milestones. Most individuals who enter drug court do not have full-time employment or a driver’s license. However, 88 percent of participants are employed at the time of graduation, and 68 percent possess their driver’s license. Because they are no longer abusing drugs or alcohol, some participants are able to repair relationships and take better care of loved ones.

Drug Court Update

Since the statewide implementation of Drug Court, statistics from the Administrative Office of the Courts show that over 625 babies were born drug free from previously addicted participant mothers, and over 200 participants obtained custody of their children.

Although drug court has generated many positive outcomes for its participants and the public, the program actively evaluates its performance and implements reform. The Judiciary is in the process of developing a set of best practices to guide drug court operations across the State. The proposed standards are based on a national model that is supported by decades of research. In addition, representatives from the National Drug Court Institute (NDCI) traveled to New Jersey to conduct a multi-day seminar for drug court teams from each county. NDCI worked with the teams to make improvements to their programs and ensure that the drug courts' operations were consistent with evidence-based standards. After the completion of the training, the teams prepared and implemented action plans in consultation with NDCI.

During this review process, employment opportunity was identified as an ongoing challenge for drug court participants. Criminal histories are the major impediment to finding employment. Participants obtain interviews, but they are routinely denied after the employer conducts a background check. Many of the participants get discouraged, and the failure to find work can have a deleterious effect on their recovery.

The Judiciary is currently looking to develop partnerships with companies to identify full-time employment for successful Drug Court participants. In his remarks to the State Bar Association in Atlantic City, Chief Justice Stuart Rabner encouraged employers to work with the Judiciary to open doors to participants "who are looking for a second chance at life." The Chief Justice noted a recent initiative with the Hard Rock Casino and Local 54 to create at least 30 full time positions for individuals who are making significant progress in Drug Court. The Judiciary is hoping to build similar relationships in the coming months and meet with employers who are willing to discuss employment opportunities.

The public and members of the bar are welcome to attend an upcoming graduation ceremony at the Mercer Criminal Courthouse. The ceremony is a celebration of the graduates' achievements and their recovery in drug court. The graduates deliver emotional speeches that offer compelling evidence of the program's effectiveness. They describe how drug court helped them escape the spiral of addiction, reunite with their families, and restore their reputations. The graduates proudly recite their accomplishments and hopes for the future. In their own words, they show that drug court intervention has the propensity to rebuild lives and deter crime without the costs and societal consequences of incarceration.

I would like to thank the Mercer County Bar Association for allowing me to contribute to the newsletter. Please contact me or the Honorable Mary C. Jacobson, Assignment Judge for the Mercer Vicinage, if you know any employer who wishes to discuss employment opportunities for drug court participants.

Central Jersey Legal Services Update

By, Susan Knispel, Esq.

WE NEED YOU TO TAKE A PRO BONO CASE AND YOU NEED US SO YOU CAN FULFILL YOUR MADDEN REQUIREMENT

If you want to be exempt from court -ordered appointments, you need to fulfill the requirement each year of 25 hours of voluntary qualifying pro bono service pursuant to R. 1:21-12. Central Jersey Legal Services, Inc. (CJLS) is an entity authorized to provide pro bono opportunities so that attorneys can claim an exemption from court appointments. Once the court appoints you to represent a client in a case, it is too late to find a way to become exempt. The twenty-five (25) hours needs to be completed by December 31st of the year prior to the year in which you are claiming the exemption.

If you specialize in family law cases you might get appointed in a case involving a DUI. If you practice real estate law you could be required to represent an alleged incapacitated individual in a guardianship case. Do you really want to be in a situation where you are required to represent a client outside your area of expertise?

But we can help! You can take pro bono cases from our organization through the Volunteer Lawyer's Project (VLP) of the Mercer County Bar Association (MCBA). At the present time we are referring out the following types of cases: Chapter 7 bankruptcy cases, criminal record expungements, guardianship matters, and family law cases (usually uncontested divorces, post-judgment motions and domestic violence restraining order matters). However, occasionally, we do have eligible clients who might need assistance with an appeal, a name change, a probate or equity court matter, a real estate matter or a tort defense. If you do not see referrals in one of your practice areas, you can always call our office to discuss the types of cases you would be willing to accept.

The MCBA maintains an email list of attorneys interested in accepting cases in each substantive area discussed above, and when they receive a referral from our office they send out an email looking for an attorney to accept the case. If you wish to be added to any of the email lists, contact either MCBA at sdelorenzo@mercerbar.com, or CJLS at sknispel@lsnj.org.

There are other ways to help our client population. Here is an example of how the law firm of Pepper Hamilton is assisting our clients. In conjunction with the firm, we set up a clinic whereby clients can receive a consultation in matters of concern to low-income tenants. Clients consult with an attorney from the firm at the offices of CJLS. The attorneys from the firm rotate. They come twice a month and see four or five clients each time. We, at CJLS, screen and schedule the clients. The Pepper Hamilton attorneys give advice on rent withholding in habitability matters, security deposit returns and rent increases along other issues affecting low-income tenants. There can be other similar opportunities for your firm, just call and ask.

In conclusion, it is the obligation of the private bar to offer pro bono assistance to those clients who cannot afford private counsel. Our legal system should provide equal access for all regardless of ability to pay. CJLS can only provide assistance to a fraction of the eligible client population in Mercer County. Please help us ensure equal justice for all by volunteering to handle pro bono cases from our Volunteer Lawyer's Project.

Susan Knispel, Esquire is currently the Deputy Director of the Trenton office of CJLS.

2018 Medal of Honor Award

Hon. Linda R. Feinberg, A.J.S.C. (Ret.)

By, Samantha Iraca & Joe Paravecchia, Esq.

On September 17, 2018, the New Jersey State Bar Foundation will award retired Mercer County Superior Court Assignment Judge Linda R. Feinberg with its highest honor: the Medal of Honor Award. The award, given annually, honors those who have made exemplary contributions to improving the justice system and enhancing New Jersey's legal legacy. The Mercer County Bar Association (MCBA) can think of no one more deserving than our own Judge Feinberg.

Judge Feinberg received her bachelor's degree from Rider University in Lawrenceville, New Jersey, and her law degree from the University of Akron Law School. She began her legal career as a labor attorney with the U.S. Department of the Army. In 1975, she served as an Assistant Mercer County Prosecutor and, in 1977, joined the faculty of The College of New Jersey (TCNJ) as part of the law and justice department.

While teaching at TCNJ, Judge Feinberg entered private practice and was also appointed to serve as a municipal court judge in Lawrence, Hopewell and West Windsor townships. In 1998, she was named presiding judge of the municipal courts in Mercer County. That same year, she was awarded the Lifetime Achievement Award from Rider University.

In 1992, Governor James Florio appointed Judge Feinberg to the New Jersey Superior Court, where she served as the presiding judge of the Family Part in Mercer County, and then as the Assignment Judge for the Mercer County Vicinage. She served as Assignment Judge until her retirement in 2012. Shortly afterwards, Judge Feinberg returned to private practice as of counsel with the firm Szaferman, Lakind, Blumstein & Blader in Lawrenceville.

In 2013, the MCBA presented Judge Feinberg with the prestigious Michael J. Nizolek Award. This award, the MCBA's highest honor, recognizes one lawyer each year for his/her unselfish contributions to both the legal profession and community.

Judge Feinberg possesses the characteristics of the most admirable attorneys and jurists. Her professional contributions to the New Jersey legal community alone demonstrate how worthy she is of the Medal of Honor Award. But, as Judge Feinberg has always shown, professionalism extends beyond competency and career success. We were fortunate to discuss with Judge Feinberg her personal and professional accomplishments. True to her character, and much to our surprise, Judge Feinberg humbly noted, that despite a lifetime of professional achievements, she is most proud of her three sons.

Young Lawyers Softball 7/14/18

On July 14, 2018, the MCBA Young Lawyers Committee (YLC) hosted a day of softball games, open to members and non-members, at Veterans Park in Hamilton Township. The event was well-attended by players and spectators and included delicious catering from Fred and Pete's Deli. Several MCBA notables, including President Angelo Onofri, Trustee Sam Toma, and Executive Director Sam Iraca, dusted off their gloves and participated in a day filled with fun and good food. Importantly, proceeds from the event benefitted the Gary Sinise Foundation and LifeTies.

Joe Paravecchia pitches for the Blue team.

The YLC would like to thank everyone who participated in and generously contributed to the softball games, including our corporate partners and, especially, our event sponsors: The Mercer County Prosecutor's Office, VFW Post 5700 (Hightstown), Gaylord Popp, RedEye, Szaferman Lakind, Rue Insurance, All State Investigators, Northfield Bank, Sixthirteen Creative, and Stark & Stark. The YLC looks forward to an even more successful event next year.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Law Change Makes Vote by Mail a Convenient Option for All Elections

TRENTON – Between work, school, family, and traveling to a polling place – taking the time to vote on Election Day might seem daunting, if not impossible, to fit into many voters' schedules. The Mercer County Clerk's Office wants to ensure that everyone can vote in future elections by offering the option to Vote by Mail. And with a new law in place, voters can now automatically receive mail-in ballots for every, not just the General, upcoming election.

On the Vote by Mail Application, there are now two options in regards to receiving future mail-in ballots. The first is to receive a ballot for a single election. The other option you can select is to request a Vote by Mail ballot for all future elections. This is a change in the previous law, which only allowed mail-in ballots to be sent for (A) all elections in one calendar year or (B) all November General Elections.

If the multiple ballot option is selected, the voter will receive all ballots for all elections, the request would remain on their registration record until a written request is received by our office indicating that they no longer wish to receive ballots.

Any registered voter can Vote by Mail in New Jersey. The week after Labor Day we will send out applications in the mail to all registered voters. The completed Vote by Mail application can either be mailed or hand delivered to our new location at 209 South Broad Street, Trenton, NJ 08650.

The Mercer County Clerk's Office wants to make voting as convenient as possible, and the Vote by Mail option gives the electorate a larger window of time to cast a vote. Even if a voter receives a Vote by Mail ballot and decides not to use it, they may go into a polling place and request to vote by provisional ballot.

There are several ways to obtain a Vote by Mail application if it is not received in the mass mailing. Applications can be obtained at the Clerk's Office, municipal clerk's office, www.mercercounty.org/countyclerk or in multiple languages on the NJ State Division of Elections website at <http://www.njelections.org/voting-information-vote-by-mail.html>. If there are any other questions feel free to call our office at (609) 989-6494 or visit the websites above.
